

Directory of Educational Equity Organizations

Overview

In 1999, the Women's Educational Equity Act (WEEA) Resource Center at EDC initiated a collaborative effort to increase public support for an inclusive vision of equitable education. That is, an environment where children can achieve success regardless of gender, race, ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation, or language. As a first step, the WEEA Center convened a meeting on June 25, 1999, of twenty-four organizations committed to education and equity. The purpose of the meeting was to develop a strategy to share resources and coordinate technical assistance, and promote the benefits of educational equity on the national and regional levels. These organizations included federal technical assistance providers, state departments of education, academics, and the following interest areas: research, women, disability, math, science, and technology, vocational education, and higher education.

The idea for this directory was conceived at this meeting. It contains information for individuals looking for equity resources, as well as providing an easy way to increase networking and collaboration across issues of gender, race, ethnicity, disability, and language for organizations working on these issues. The directory is divided into state, federal, and regional sections and also includes contact information for the organizations participating in the WEEA Center's national equity group.

We will continue to update and expand this directory. If you have any corrections or additions to the directory or need any additional information, please contact the WEEA Center at (800) 225-3088 or on our TTY line: (800) 354-6798.

State Equity Contacts

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, the federal law that prohibits sex discrimination in institutions that receive federal financial assistance, requires each state to appoint a Title IX coordinator. The WEEA Center contacted state departments of education in all 50 states and the District of Columbia to determine whether they had appointed these contacts. Additionally, states may also have contacts for vocational equity (Perkins Act). As you will see, some states have combined all of these responsibilities into one position that they designate as the “state equity contact.” Following is a listing of the contacts provided by the states. Please note that in those instances where states do not appoint a Title IX coordinator, by default that responsibility goes to the chief state education officer (commissioner of education, superintendent of schools, etc).

Call your state equity contact to find out:

- what your state is doing to meet the requirements of Title IX
- who your local coordinator is
- how the state can help you promote gender equity in education
- how to get help for any compliance or discrimination concerns

We will continue to update our lists. Please contact us with any new information.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Secretary of Education

The staff of the Secretary of Education's office includes a "special assistant for equity" to oversee issues related to gender, race, ethnicity, disability and all other areas of equity. The special assistant's responsibilities include: reviewing all correspondence, publications, and other equity materials; and sitting on the President's Interagency Council on Women.

WEEA Program

Established by federal legislation in 1974, the Women's Educational Equity Act (WEEA) Program promotes educational equity for women and girls through competitive grants to public agencies, private nonprofit organizations, and individuals, and through technical assistance and dissemination of materials by a national equity resource center.

The WEEA Program office in the U.S. Department of Education administers the grantmaking activities and oversees the activities of the WEEA Equity Resource Center at EDC. WEEA grants are available for local implementation of gender equity practices and policies as well as research and dissemination activities in pre-kindergarten, K-12, postsecondary, vocational, and adult education.

WEEA Equity Resource Center

The WEEA Equity Resource Center at EDC can help you find the tools you need to create gender-fair multicultural learning environments. The national WEEA Equity Resource Center works with schools, community organizations, businesses, and individuals to incorporate equity into classrooms, programs, curricula, and workshops. The Center also publishes and markets gender-fair education products and disseminates the latest resources for multicultural gender-fair education. For materials or services to help all students succeed, call the center's hotline at (800) 225-3088 or the TTY line at 800-354-6798.

FEDERAL ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES

Office for Civil Rights

The Office for Civil Rights in the U.S. Department of Education enforces five federal statutes that prohibit discrimination in education programs and activities that receive federal financial assistance. Discrimination on the basis of race, color, and national origin is prohibited by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; sex discrimination is prohibited by Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972; discrimination on the basis of disability is prohibited by Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; and age discrimination is prohibited by the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. The Department of Justice also has delegated OCR responsibility for enforcing Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. For questions or to file a complaint, contact the nearest regional OCR office.

REGIONAL TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICE PROVIDERS

Regional Equity Assistance Centers

The ten Equity Assistance Centers (EACs), formerly Desegregation Assistance Centers, are funded by the U.S. Department of Education under Title IV of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. (This Act prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.) The EACs provide technical assistance and training to school districts seeking to comply with the Act.

Regional Technology in Education Consortia

The U.S. Department of Education established the Regional Technology in Education Consortia (R-TEC) program in 1995 to help states, school districts and others use advanced technology to support improved student achievement. The R-TECs' role in educational technology is unique in two ways: their emphasis is regional, and their primary goal is to ensure that technology is used effectively to support school reform. R-TEC program strategies include professional development, technical assistance and information dissemination.

Eisenhower National Clearinghouse on Mathematics and Science

The Eisenhower National Clearinghouse's (ENC) mission is to identify effective curriculum resources, create high-quality professional development materials, and disseminate useful information and products to improve K-12 mathematics and science teaching and learning. Located at the Ohio State University, ENC is funded through a contract with the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Educational Research and Improvement. Established in 1992, ENC works in collaboration with a network of regional organizations, including the Eisenhower Regional Consortia, the ENC Demonstration Sites, and the ENC Access Centers.

Regional Educational Laboratories

Ten regional educational laboratories work to help educators and policymakers solve education problems in their states and districts. The labs research education issues, print publications, and provide training programs to teachers and administrators. Each lab publishes a catalog of its publications, covering a wide range of topics such as teaching strategies, school improvement, and parental involvement. Catalogs and publications are available to anyone, regardless of region, and can be requested directly from the labs; other services (training programs, etc.) are region-specific, and must be acquired through district education officials.
